CONFESSED TO BRUTAL MURDER

Pal of Young Pan Mac Negro Says She Boy Confessed to Choking Woman. Gruesome Story Unfolded at Hearing.

Ivit a murder was committed at Pen Mar, April 10 and that the perpetrator was a negro youth who was arrested a few days ago in Pittsfield pkin for larceny, was the substance of a hearing held in Justice Potter's office Waynesboro Friday afternoon. The alleged murderer is Herbert Lewis. His victim was Mrs Carrie McClure a Baltimore woman, who occupied a cottage at Pen Mar. It was at first thought that Mrs. McClure died a natural death and that the robbery had no connection with it.

Lewis, it was said, confessed his crime to Sheran Jackson, a youthful acquaintance. Jackson's story of Lewis' confession is a tale of a horrible crime unnecessarily committed and returned to after the boy was interrupted by a possible witness This is the confession in brief:

"Lewis crawled into a house on the mountain, had choked the woman and when some one came downstairs he slammed the door in that person's face and then went back and finished killing the woman."

George D. McCabe, young son of the dead woman, said that on the morning of April 10 he went to the store at 7 o'clock, returned with papers and read until 9 a. m. He put down the windows in his mother's room, locked the door leading to the porch and went to bed. Later he heard a strange sound. He went downstairs and the door leading from the kitchen to his mother's room was slammed in his face.

He asked his mother whether she needed him. A voice replied in a whisper "No." Then he asked, "Shall I go back to bed?" The same voice replied in a whisper "Yes."

He did not know whether or not it was his mother's voice. Next morning at 8 o'clock he went downstairs. Mrs. Lehman, who was employed about the house, was on the porch waiting to get in. He let her in and then went into the door leading to his mother's room. He found this locked and then went around on the outside and found the window open. He crawled through and found his mother dead. She was lying on the bed on her left side. One arm was stretched out and from the arm drops of blood fell. Her head was at the foot of the bed.

Justice Potter held Lewis in $1,000 bail and Constable Jackson on the charge of larceny, but held him under $500 bail as a witness. They were committed to jail.

MORE PRAISE FOR EDDIE

Eddie Plank name is for a little more praise in Sunday's Philadelphia Record which said:

"The most conspicuousness his numerous pitchers are handing him this season makes the work of Eddie Plank look all the brighter to Connie Mack. The veteran of the speed and a pinpoint whose some of the others have for several seasons been relegating to the "have" class, Plank keeps right on delivering the goods in masterly style. It was Plank who kept the Athletics out of last place all through the early weeks of the season last year and again it is Plank who is doing most of the winning this year. His left hand arose first as it finally and' you can bet his pin-shaking methods is preparing for the hostile season leave no cause for such action as lack of control and overweight. Plank knew what was coming and prepared to give his best efforts at a time when good work is most needed. Plank blew up in the sixth inning yesterday, after having held the White Sox down all through the game. Had any of the other pitchers been in form Mack could have relieved Plank when he saw he was in trouble, but Eddie was left to fight it out alone, with disastrous results."

STILL WORKING FOR THE TROLLEY

A conference was held Friday afternoon by a committee of residents from East Berlin and another from the York Chamber of Commerce with Gordon Spangler, of Hanover, as the trolley man, to see if a trolley line from York to East Berlin could be secured. The meeting was called by the Chamber of Commerce to get information concerning the proposition.

They were Messrs Smith, Leeson and Taylor, a committee from the Inter Urban to East Berlin was proposed some time ago by the business men as to the population along this line to back up the guaranty assertion the extension would pay, inducements the secure the right of way were held out to the Inter Urban officials.

President Campbell was the center of a delegation from the Chamber of East Berlin tried to prove to him that the population justified the investment and the representatives from York Chamber of Commerce pointed out to him the benefits that would come to York through the opening up of this new territory. Messrs Weibers and Williams H. McClellan were the committee from the York Chamber of Commerce.

President Campbell assured the committee that he would consider the information that was laid before him and that he would get in touch later up to the York Railways company.

AGRICULTURE FOR COUNTY SCHOOLS

County Men to Meet in Hear Future to Discuss Advisability of Establishing Such Courses. Corn Growing Contest also.

For the purpose of discussing the advisability of establishing courses in agriculture in the public schools of Adams County a meeting of the committee appointed at the annual farmers' institutes several months ago will be held in the court house at Gettysburg Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

The committee consists of about thirty members, representing experts, and at each of the institutes which were held at Arendtsville, East Berlin and Fairfield. The idea is in line with the general suggestion to give the children of the rural schools some training at knowledge concerning the science of farming and thus retard the number who are following the greatest trend from the farm to towns and cities.

To assess still further interest in farm work this large committee, will take up the plan of a corn growing contest in which it is hoped to interest scores of the boys in the county. The assistance of farmers' clubs, granges and the Farmers' Conservation are to be the county will be asked to formulate the plans.

Each boy who enters will be asked to plant one half acre of corn, the yield being expected to be not less than sons that much of the farm for the experiment. The prize will be that the one seed corn and do all the work of cultivation themselves. It is probable that the boy who raises the most and the largest amount of corn raised from the seed given him by the fair will be best display of ten ears. The product of the contest will be exhibited at the fair. It has been suggested that this be held in connection with the county institute about the first of March, as scheduled for Biglerville in January.

CLASS ENTERTAINS

The King's Daughters Sunday School class of the Lutheran church entertained a few of their friends at a social time in the church parlors Friday evening. The social marks the end of the class existence as an individual class since they have been united with several classes in the new Sunday School room. Those present were Margaret Trostel, Mrs R. H. Wolfe, Mrs Charles Baker, Mrs Verna Spence, Amy Swift, Tillie Dalbey, Ruth Dalby, Dorothy Bream, Mrs Charles Baker, William Plank, Lester Oyler, Rogers Sterne and Lester Dalby. Those who were unable to be present were, Beulah Armor, Grace Rebecca Sterne, Mrs Robert Sherpresent, Beulah Bellinger, Louise Weaver, Mrs Elmer Sterne, Mrs. Lester Bowers, Emma Thorn, Mrs William Shaeffer, Lottie Rafflensperger, Ella Rafflensperger, Mrs. Robert Ibach, Mrs Trostle, Minerva Tanghinbaugh and Charles S. Bream.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

Under the direction of "Jock" Tawney Troop is making rapid progress in drilling. Several scouting stations have been given on the Square and the boys make a good appearance.

The basketball team of the St. James church has been fitted up with a large number of suits.

The base ball teams are practicing every evening; the first team will in all probability defeat Carlisle and Chambersburg on Saturday when they are scheduled to appear in each town. Also, Bushler has been elected captain of the first team.

The second team of the troop will likely play the Boys' Club team of Biglerville on Saturday morning.

Adrian Higbee, who was on a dozen or more outings in that vicinity, is authority for this statement.

Mr. Hughes says that in former years his outings were held here among by this time, while this year he does not have a single one rented as yet.

PRESBYTERIAN REUNION

The annual Presbyterian reunion will be held at Pen Mar on Thursday, August 1. The reunion committee has secured William T. Ellis, of Philadelphia, to make the address on the occasion. Mr. Ellis is the editor-in-field of the Continent, a well-known world-wide traveler, journalist, lecturer and writer on religious and moral world topics. His Pen Mar subject will be "The Americanization of the World."

DIFFICULT TO HEAR ROOSEVELT

Gettysburg People who Wish to Hear Roosevelt Speak in Big Tent Memorial Day will have to Apply. The Plans.

Gettysburg people who desire to hear Roosevelt make his address before the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers in the big tent at Bloody Angle on Memorial Day will have to arrange to do so unless they put in applications at once for tickets of admission.

It was expected that about sixteen hundred would attend those exercises and number of these will remain to be served by St. James Mite Society. So great is the demand for tickets from Philadelphia, Reading, Harrisburg and other points become that it has been found necessary to increase the capacity to two thousand and Gettysburg people who desire to attend should hand applications at once to John A. Clabaugh, secretary of the reunion committee, though the great demand makes it highly doubtful that requests will be granted.

The women of St. James church realize that in feeding this large throng they have a tremendous task, and they will have to work systematically and about forty men to help. A special force will be assigned to guard the tent and prevent any one crowding and also to prevent people without tickets from getting into the tent.

That Roosevelt's speech in the tent will be a hot one is asserting no more fortunate as his visit comes in the event ry will be in the afternoon and the Democratic afternoon crowd in the tent will wait until afternoon for a better chance to hear him from the rostrum.

St James events on clearing $60 for the new church from the organ recitals.

WILL COME BACK HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stonebaugh, who a few mon h ago sold their personal property at public sale in Straban township and moved to Kingsley, have decided that the old Keystone State is the best place to live and will return East in a few days. They will reside on the John Chronister home near Amatus.

MAKE PLANS TO HANDLE 60,000

Three Railroads to Combine to Make Temporary Belt Line through Gettysburg for Fiftieth Anniversary. Five Trains an Hour.

Secretary of War Stimson in a communication sent to the Senate Saturday estimates that $500,000 will be required to carry out the plans for the semi-centennial celebration of the battle of Gettysburg in July 1913.

The estimate was asked for by a resolution introduced by Senator Oliver, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Joint Congressional Committee on the arrangements that is acting with the Pennsylvania State Commission. Besides Senator Oliver, the Congressional commission consists of Senators Warburn, of Idaho; Senator Swanson, of Virginia; Representative Lafean, of Pennsylvania; Representative Linn, of Virginia, and former Representative Twomey, of Minnesota. The amount asked for by Secretary of War Stimson will be used in transporting, entertaining, feeding and housing the 40,000 veterans of the Blue and the Gray who are expected to attend the semi-centennial of the great battle.

Secretary Stimson ordered an exhaustive investigation into the condition of the battlefield and the measures that would be necessary to provide a proper transportation facilities, a water supply, sanitation, shelter and commissary. To provide the necessary transportation facilities, Quartermaster General Aleshire, after a survey, recommends that the railroads between Harrisburg, York, Carlisle, Hanover and Gettysburg be joined to establish a provisional belt line under shareable control and management of a competent railroad man. By some such arrangement it can easily be kept moving in one direction by a minimum headway of 12 minutes, thereby prevent danger of collisions and delays and the consequent handling of the motors during the day and leaving the lines free at night for transportation of supplies to the battlefield.

Secretary Stimson recommends that for the policing of the battlefield and the protection of guests a detail of the State Constabulary be secured by the Commission to act under the direction of the city authorities of Gettysburg. It is stated that there are 2,5 companies of regular troops be sent to Gettysburg to guard the line of descent of Governors property, tents, camp equipment, etc. that will be provided for the use of entertainment and comfort of the veterans and their families.

The arrangements for feeding the guests are on an enormous scale. Rations for the veterans will be practically by 100 cooks, and 110 bakers directed by a chief commissary, four subsistants, 10 commissary sergeants and a half dozen clerks. The cooking will be done on 400 army ranges, and each veteran will be supplied with an enamel plate, a knife and fork and two spoons. The rations will cost to the neighborhood of $60 day.

The cost of the "mess kits" is estimated at $50 000, and the kits will be given to the veterans as souvenirs. Fresh meat will be supplied daily by refrigerator cars. The tents to be supplied from the regular army stores will number 5000, each accommodating from eight persons. The tents will be provided with wooden floors, and bedding will be left undone to make the veterans comfortable. Cots, hold harmless and three infirmaries will set up to take care of the sick or injured. A water supply of 600 gallons per day will be provided, and four wells will be drilled on the field. No supplement the t guise supply that can be obtained from neighborhood.

JAYSON SEIFERT RELEASED

Jason Seifert, who has been in jail since the shooting of Bernice Carbaugh on March 30, charged with assisting in the shooting, was finally discharged at a hearing held on Saturday before Squire Arthur Spangler in Hamiltonban township. WOMAN FIRES AT WOULD-BE INTRUDER

Mervin Stamer, of Mount Holly Springs, narrowly escaped serious injury or probable death at the hands of Mrs William Dixon on Saturday night after, it is alleged, he made an attempt to enter her home Her husband was away at the time and hearing a noise at the front door she made an investigation. She could see a man in the darkness. Mrs. Dixon was alone, so she went out of a rear door to a near by store and found her brother-in-law, William Peffer Together they went into the rear of the home, and after Mrs. Dixon had gone to the second floor to get a revolver, they went to the front door, where Stamer was at the time. The door opened and Mrs. Dixon fended the revolver. A bullet followed, in which Stamer Peffer and Mrs. Dixon took part. The woman fired a shot from the revolver and the bullet went through Stamer's coat sleeve Then the gun was wrested from her and Stamer picking it up ran away A warrant was issued for his arrest and Constable Hoffman and Chief of Police Gilds went to Harrisburg to arrest Stamer.

FINDS HE OWNS $7500 VIOLIN

To find himself possessed of a violin of enormous value has been the pleasant experience of Charles Riley, of Cumberland township, who has discovered that an old "fiddle," invested to him by his brother, is worth a small fortune. The instrument bears on its side the orderly carved inscription "A. D. 1700" and is thought to be some years older than that date would indicate. Mr. Riley has refused an offer of $2500.00 for it.

The violin was the possession of David Riley, father of the present owner. He secured it from a man by the name of Eckenrode at a sale and the ownership has been traced back to this man Eckenrode's grandfather. Where it came from before he secured it is not known. The violin is supposed to have come from South America before it fell into the hands of the Eckenrode family.

After the death of David Riley sale of his household effects was held and the various children bid in certain articles. Charles Riley bought the fiddle but some time after he had it in the barn him the old violin as his fancy struck the effects. Little was the sight of the value of the instrument.

Some days ago he was walking on one of the streets of Gettysburg with the instrument under his arm when a stranger saw him and called.

"What have you there?" he asked.

Mr Riley displayed the violin and an offer of $50 for it was quickly forthcoming. Mr. Riley was naturally resident refused the offer and continued on his way with the fiddle but until it reached the $2500.00 mark. Still the stranger refused to tell the unknown man refused to offer more.

Mr. Riley, now thoroughly aroused, let the matter rest there. He kept on his way and had gone but a short distance when he was approached by another stranger who asked to see the violin. He did and it was for sale that Mr. Riley replied.

"Well, don't sell it for that. It's worth more and before you let anyone have it you had better see me. Here is my name and address to the happy possessor." And he departed.

Mr Riley is taking good care of the instrument now and will not sell it until he has ascertained the exact worth of his possession. The instrument bee a source of much interest to musicians and those who know little about the respective merits of musical instruments. It has unusual volume. No indication that it is a valuable violin to look at it but the date would indicate that it was made during the time of the renaissance of violin making and there is no lesse followed by practically all violin manufacturers, both old and new for more than two hundred years.

Friends are congratulating Mr. Riley over his good fortune in suddenly finding that he has a fortune in an instrument that he has long possessed. It was thought to be of little value. Now, he says he will buy a piano for his near Pitzer's school house. where he has a class of pupils and will also decide to be unable to play it but the manner in which he draws the bow over the strings, and the rich chords, shows that he knows something about handling the instrument.

MRS. M'CABE WAS NOT MURDERED

Autopsy over Body of Pan Mar Woman about whose Death there was Some Mystery, Showed it Came from Natural Cause.

Mrs. Carrie McAtee, wife of Captain Harry McAtee, whose dead body was found in a bungalow at Pen Mar on April 20th, was not murdered
An autopsy held in Baltimore on Thursday by one of the most eminent surgeons of the city entitles that conclusion.
Mr. McAtee, husband of the woman, states that he is entirely satisfied with the result of the autopsy and coroner's jury now that his poor wife was suffering intensely and died as the result of disease.
Coroner J. P. Mackey and District Attorney W. G. Nickles, of Franklin county, went to Baltimore on the arrival of typing of the body to be certain that the woman had been murdered.
On their return to Pen Mar Mr. McCabe waiting for them and at once tried to secure permission for the exhumation of the remains. The Chamberlburt authorities made considerable opposition to the idea and it was not until Wednesday night that the necessary permission was secured.
Thursday morning the Undertaker Mr Pitmer, was asked to secure a competent and reliable surgeon to perform the autopsy and he recommended Dr. J. Whitridge Williams, of much prominence and one who for 25 years had been considered worth a recognized authority in such matters. Mr McCabe was satisfied with the choice of the surgeon. Thursday the autopsy was performed by Dr. Williams in the presence of Coroner Dr. Joseph P. Mackey, the Franklin county coroner.
The official report of the post mortem examination is a lengthy document and will not be made public until sent to it.
The report shows the larynx normal and in position but very tuberculer. The lungs were badly affected by tuberculosis. The heart, liver, neck was opened and the veterbrae found normal though there was considerable a fracture.
Both the surgeon and Coroner Mackey agreed that the death of the woman was due to a pulmonary hemorrhage.
The remains of Mrs. McAtee were brought out at the hearing in which Herbert Hoffman, of Pen Mar, is held by District attorney in the criminal case. It is believed that Hoffman will be a murder charge will be brought. Lewis is in jail at Chambersburg.

WILL INSPECT COUNTY BRIDGES

More than a Hundred Adams County Bridges to be Subject for Inspection by Board of Commissioners who will Make Necessary Repairs

The annual inspection of the one hundred and twenty-four bridges in Adams County will be started next week by the county commissioners. It is expected to take some days.

The bridges in the immediate vicinity of the various commissioners' homes will not be viewed as their condition is known but all others will be inspected. The improvements and repairs found necessary will then be authorized and all put in good condition.

The maintaining of the large number of county bridges is no small task. It means that from now most look after one hundred and twenty five pieces of property, which is scattered, and subject to the hardest kind of wear and use. Adams County's bridges have been well taken care of by former boards and the present commissioners will be just as vigilant as their predecessors.

The new bridge over Paxton Creek at Aspers has been completed and is a substantial structure which has earned much favorable comment. It was erected by the York Bridge Company. Two spans of reinforced steel were placed on the abutments of the old bridge which collapsed several months ago without any warning.

Three inspectors were appointed to view the completed bridges, S. Riley Miller, Calvin Gilbert and Daniel A. Shelly. They have approved it and will make their report to Court on Monday, May 20.

NOTES OF NEWS ABOUT THE TOWN

The Gettysburg Boy Scouts cleared $47 at their Entertainment Tuesday evening. During the evening they paraded the streets, making a fine appearance in full uniform.

Numerous Gettysburg and nearby county people have purchased fruit trees on the curb market within the past few days, and many yards and gardens have had young trees planted.

DROPPED FALSE TEETH

As stated previously in this paper Arthur Noel, of Bonneauville, was thrown from his motor car a little past Saturday night by three men. The car was overturned and Noel in the middle of the house, which Mr. Noel was driving, but the machine did not stop but continued on its way.

John F. Noel, president of district No. 9, also heard investigator of the affair. Mr. Noel was unable to make a new motor car due to the fact that he had lost his false teeth in the accident. The machine, I suppose would be a total loss. Mr. Noel has been out in search of the workers.

Mr. Noel is also known to his pal for poker and was often interrupted by the game by the call of duty. He just remained faithful to your organization. Mr. Noel is also known as a gambler as per all your demands. Latest reports concerning Noel is that personal loss are not all you have to worry about. Noel is also a bad egg and has been for and in these as he is also a gambler.

"It takes more than willingness to make a soldier," declared Lieutenant Colonel Hall in a recent address in which he fixed humorous attention upon the fact that the militia is not a haven for refuge. When you haven't got it for your self-respect, you can't get it anywhere else, their rules for bread? We have got to be a fighting force, not a convalescent home with which to conduct a strike-breaking service. Let's get down to brass tacks and see what we can do to make the militia more attractive to the young men of the country. Let's get down to the serious business of preparing for war, and not to the business of preparing for peace

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—The scene of the opening is laid in the office of the attorney of a railroad which is seeking to secure control of the terminal facilities of a certain city. Mr. Mahaffy, the attorney, is discussing with Mr. Stranger, known as Prather, the details of the deal. Mr. Stranger is to secure the necessary franchises from the city and southern loyalty, native ties and the like. Mr. Stranger is to secure the loyalty.

CHAPTER II.—Mechanical Parris, home from the war, is discussing with Mr. Mahaffy the question of the latter's loyalty to the Confederacy. Mr. Mahaffy tells Parris that he is not interested in politics, but is interested in the Southern Railway, which threatens to build into the city. Parris tells Mahaffy that he is not loyal to the South.

CHAPTER III.—Mechanical Parris, home from the war, is discussing with Mr. Mahaffy the question of the latter's loyalty to the Confederacy. Mr. Mahaffy tells Parris that he is not interested in politics, but is interested in the Southern Railway, which threatens to build into the city. Parris tells Mahaffy that he is not loyal to the South.

CHAPTER IV.—Mahaffy, seeking to win Parris over to the railroad's interests, tells him that the franchises will be granted to the Southern Railway, with Mahaffy's son-in-law, Stranger, as president. Parris, however, refuses to be won over, and tells Mahaffy that he will fight the franchises.

CHAPTER V.—Mahaffy, angered by Parris' refusal to support the franchises, tells him that he will be sorry for it. Parris goes to his home and tells his mother about the affair.

CHAPTER VI.—Parris' mother, Elizabeth Hill, is a widow. Parris' father was killed in the war. Parris tells his mother that he will fight the franchises. Elizabeth, however, gives him her blessing in the fight.

CHAPTER VII.—Parris is served with a writ of injunction, issued by Judge Priest, restraining him from interfering with the franchises. Parris, angered at the writ, tears it up.

CHAPTER VIII.—Parris is arrested for contempt of court in tearing up the writ of injunction. He is brought before Judge Priest, who threatens to send him to jail.

CHAPTER IX.—Betty sets out for her home in Hamilton, Kentucky. She is accompanied by Mrs. Mahaffy and her son, Will Mahaffy, who is also going to Hamilton. Will tells Betty that he is in love with her. Betty tells him that she is not ready to think of love affairs.

CHAPTER XVII.

The Judge Extends His Credit.

That afternoon Judge Price walked out to Bella Plain. Solomon Mahaffy had known him when he was a child, and Betty Mathey could by no means escape. He had been communicative of the Judge's purpose from the moment it entered his head, and had set to work to shriven to divers him, but his striving had been in vain. For though the Judge valued Mr. Mahaffy because of certain sterling qualities which he professed to discover beneath the hard crust that made up the external man, he was not disposed to accept him as his mentor in matters of taste and gentlemanly feeling. He owed it to himself and society to render all due sympathy. Miss Mairoy must have heard something of the sad affair before part he had played; surely she could not be ignorant of the fact that she is the lawless element, standing his ruthless assault. He threatened him, like most know, too, about that reward of five thousand dollars. Certainly her grief could not blind her to the fact that he had met the attendance with a largeness of public spirit that was an impressive lesson to the entire community.

These were all points over which he and Mahaffy had wrangled, and he felt that he was skilled in seeking to keep him away from Bella Plain, was equally unequal to his fight. He really could not understand Solomon's objections. He pointed out that Mr. Mahaffy had come into a wilderness one knew not—probably his entire wealth got to be invested where—what more thingy? He understood Northern lack of enterprise somewhere in middle Tennessee—there was the attractive possibility of extended litigation. Miss Mairoy needed a strong, clear brain to guide her just those difficulties his agile fancy assimilated to her path. He lessened on his friend with a wide sweep smile.

"You don't understand, my s'arver Price!" insinuated Mahaffy.

That was, no doubt, Solomon, he unworthy of you. Just some soma one, will you, Solomon? Have you an interest comparable to mine? I may say I have invested my entire energy to be s'dare, and with disinterestedness. I have made no s'dare. Will you name him who else these cutthroats have tried to involved, and impugned? You know that my theories and convictions are to be sacred to me. I am 'em in a pedal, sir—presently some fellow will look his nerve and start out for the tall timber—and I will be just plumb s'dare—and I've done the trick—so one else!"

"Are you looking for some one to take a pot shot at you?" inquired Mr. Price, blandly.

"Good Lawd! sh uncovers my fondest hopes, Solomon—I have five years of my life just to be sure of. I would not have a single episode of the latter s'dare!" agonized the distressed Mahaffy. "I say that wide and sunny s'dare!"

"Well, you let the boy go alone, Price!" inquired Solomon, in a tone of censure of sublime confidence in the judge's tact and discretion. The judge, himself, appreciated never a doubt.

"I didn't not elevate myself, Solomon, I shall merely walk out to Bella Plain and have a civil message. I am sorry that Miss Mairoy has been bereaved state—she has sustained no loss—but I shall be no culprit to fashion. She has been the center of a stirring, profoundly moving

"You might ask her," said Mahaffy cynically. "Nothing like going to headquarters for the news!"

"Solomon, Solomon, give me credit for common sense—go further, and give me credit for common decency! Don't let us forget that ever since we came here she has shallowed, in charminsly hospitable spirit where we are concerned!"

"Prudent charity hit nearer the mark, Price!"

"I have never so regarded it, Solomon," said the judge mildly. "I have used a different term myself. I am old and four and potatoes she's sent here, and she has been kind and thoughtful to us she is wondering in the midst of her grief why I haven't been to see her. She'll appreciate the considerate delicacy of a gentleman. I'll be back as possible to get out flowers in that sunken shallow."

The judge had been occupied with various duties during the morning, but had trimmed the frayed shrive of his coat, then, donning a pair of old gloves and cut upside down a fresh morning paper, he had made a selection from the best his shone had assigned as entertaining, and, with a view to encouraged a lone reselute and resource-ful mind, had put a pretty sharp pencil at his left-hand he artfully closed over it. "This may be a good time to study Betty through the rifle in the heart. That the judge did not gain in confidence in search of song, or sentiment, was manifest, and stepped to the door.

"Where are you going, Solomon, I'm off—some, Hamilton!" he said.

Mahaffy had no desire to escape testing Betty, advantageous as he felt it would be to him, and, with a reflection on reaching Bella Plain, he and Hamilton were soon in the road and passed by little Steve. It was more years than the judge could count since he had put his foot inside such a house, but with the instinct of a scout he rose to the occasion; it possessed a certain primitive, pioneer, battered feature, while he liked little there was in the way of luxury or ornate grin from on his lips.

"Why are we to get Judge Priest? Price presents his compliments and condescension," said Miss Mairoy—how you got that strange name, Betty?—to be concluded affably. Little Steve, who had been sent for the particular of condescension and his cent to the Hamilton's dollars. Can you?"

"You may also say that Judge Priest's compliments and condescension," said his compliments and condescension—I'm off—some, Hamilton!" he said.

Betty rose as the Judge entered. Miss Price presents his compliments and condescension—" Miss Mairoy—how you got that strange name, Betty?—to be concluded affably. Little Steve, who had been sent for the particular of condescension and his cent to the Hamilton's dollars. Can you?"

"You may also say that Judge Priest's compliments and condescension," said his compliments and condescension—I'm off—some, Hamilton!" he said.

Betty rose as the Judge entered. She was interrupted by the entrance of Mrs. Mahaffy.

"My dear young lady—" the judge began, then he stopped abruptly. But with the solemnity of carriage and manner he bowed profoundly over her hand, as his own inscrutable wisdom dictated the proper attitude to the present nation. "We are all poorer, ma'am, that she should be thus early and so hacked toward the door.

"I'll send for you when we're ready to go home. I am thinking of taking Betty and Hamilton to Carrollton, and I should like to have Betty see as much as possible with me before I start for the north."

It occurred to Betty that she had done little to entertain her guest, and could probably this would be her last opportunity.

The state of the Judge's feelings was not to be envied. Solomon's absence of mind he poured himself a second drink, and, feeling that there should be no doubt the act was of intelligence, poured a third. "In best respects, ma'am," and bowed as he handed the glass to Betty, who backed toward the door.

"Will you not join me?" he besitete to call upon me if I can be of any use to you, because you are a stranger to me here without a moment's delay." He was not unmindful that such an allusion had been made to his recent duel, but the unconscious simplicity of Betty was as yet in ignorance of the incident which had aroused public interest and achieved as the champion of law and order. He was also reflected with satisfaction that Hamilton, in attending, would admirably serve his ends.

Betty insisted that he should be seated, and, with a view to placating, the judge gracefully plaited the tails of his coat and sat down in a chair away from Bella Plain behind a pair of cross-pieces, in the shade of a silvery on the box. He was conscious of a great comfort in the reflection of fact that he should parallels Mahaffy. A new interest attached to the latter, his hope had sustained when Betty spoke of certain of his kindly attentions. That was life—breed acres and big grain-producing farms, and a cozy retiring liquor—and such Senoir—in the background, and a big fire in the closed cross.

"Every years in the wood it an hour?" he muttered. "I'd like to have built such a home for my family, and I come to die and probably she nes [illegible] and the [illegible] and researched his soul for words with which adequately to describe that whisky to Mahaffy.

PRAYER POST CARDS AGAIN

Town and County People Alarmed by Freak Idea which Operates through the Mails. Many Superstitious Ones Affected.

Many persons in Gettysburg and various parts of the county have been frightened by receiving prayer cards, saying what the originators term "An Ancient Prayer" and the declaration that all who fail to keep up the useless "chain" would meet with misfortune. Each send out and each send the cards sent forward nine cards just like it to nine friends, so the scheme are to be used. It is surprising how many hundreds of these cards have passed through the mails.

For some time the cards have been increasing in number and the fear of failing how many people have received the chain unknown prayers and warnings. A great many persons who are inclined to be in the least superstitious, have followed out the instructions of the cards they have received from unknown senders and have in this way carried out the endless chain without saying a word to any one.

Now and then some people have told about the mysterious cards each have received and the hints have come to light. A great many women have received these postcards and without saying anything to anybody sent their cards to the nine friends, as asked.

It is evident that the chain has been extended among all classes of people in this section and the authorities threaten to start an investigation. The cards are sent unsigned, which renders it difficult for the postal authorities to trace their source, and now that it has been so long since the originator of the scheme started the chain, it will be hard to locate the party.

But many people have been frightened by the many prayer cards and seem feel that it is urged to break the chain and keep the wars of many.

At one of the neighboring towns the postmaster confiscates all cards bearing the prayer. It is stated that he has no legal right to do this and that the only way to stop the proceeding is for people themselves to take the matter in hand.

BIGLERVILLE MEETING

The regular meeting of the Bigler ville U. B. S. T. A. will be held at home of Mrs. Sue Wierman Wednesday evening, May 20th. At this time officers were elected for the coming year and all who are interested are welcomed. One new department was added, Flower Mission Department. An interesting report from the superintendent and delegate who attended the conference at Gettysburg was given. The subject of "Suffrage," "Laws on Tobacco and Cigarettes" were the principle topics of discussion. It was decided to have the anti-cigarette and anti-tobacco laws printed and posted in public places. The next regular meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Cornelia Sandoe, June 18th.

C. A. U. ARRANGEMENTS

At Arendtsville on May 30th to meet at 8 p. m. on May 29th to meet at Wenksville at 8:30 a. m.; at Bendersville May 30th to meet at 8 p. m. at Biglerville June 1st to meet at 2 p. m. There will be a band at each place and there will be speaking.

FIRELET

A small building on the premises of Mrs. Mary Sanders Water street Fairfield, caught fire about 10 o'clock Monday night.

Harry Brown gave an alarm and by the assistance of neighbors the flames were confined to the inside of the structure. The building was used as a hog pen and storage room.

CHARTER GRANTED

A charter has been granted the Hotel Gettysburg Company. Capital $40,000.

WHEELS TO TURN EARLY IN JUNE

Large New Furniture Factory will be in Operation within a Few Weeks. Work being Pushed right along.

Wheels will be turning in the plant of the Gettysburg Furniture Company early in June. The new factory is now on the big factory continues, which it is sure to do unless heavy rains should prevent. With reasonably good weather the mill room should be under roof by the end of this week or the beginning of next.

The walls of the mill room are well up, the window sashes have been placed and workmen are hurrying along the building as rapidly as possible. The big boiler has been put in place and the outlet to the engine is expected from York in a few days and it will be put in position at once. The dry kilns is practically complete. Work on the office portion and of the factory, which will be built as soon as the mill room is finished has already been started.

The Western Maryland has built a siding to the plant and from this all lumber will be unloaded onto trucks by which it will be conveyed to the mill by the furniture company. The lumber will be taken on these trucks to the dry kilns and from there to the mill room, remaining on the trucks all the time. It saves a great deal of time and it is easy for the skilled mechanics to toss it to bed.

The manner in which any possibility at fire is being guarded against in the construction of the building is very interesting and danger from this source will be reduced to a minimum.

The specialties of the Gettysburg Furniture Company will be chiefly chairs and tables but with the Rauser company will continue to manufacture beds. The output of the plant when utilizing on York street will not likely be less than 500 per day until the more important work of erecting factory buildings now occupying the attention of the force.

HELD MOTHERS' MEETING

The department of mother's work connected with the W. C. T. U. had a notable gathering in the Methodist church on Saturday afternoon, at which time an address was delivered by the young mothers' and little ones of Gettysburg. With the large audience at this time, gives promise of pleasant meetings in the future and much helpfulness to all concerned.

The program as prepared by Mrs. Miss Hoffman, superintendent of Mothers' Work included music and readings. Addresses by the young mothers and recitations. A piano solo, rendered by Mrs. Hanna Bowers and a solo, sung by Mrs. Markley, were particularly enjoyable.

The next meeting is appointed for St. James' and it may be that sewing by little girlswork will be a feature of the pastime on that occasion.

Young ladies and old are alike and crime and weakness and children are especially invited to attend these meetings

ARM BROKEN

William, the 8 year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kuhn, of Littlestown met with a very painful accident Friday evening when he fell from a horse riding a tricycle and, being so much interested in the exercise, he ran for some time a wonderful speed unnoticed, striking the boy on the right arm, producing a compound fracture of bone. Dr. J. L. Sheets of New Oxford, attended to the injury.

HEED'S TRIAL MOST EXPENSIVE

It is estimated that the imprisonment, trial and execution of William F. Heed, cost the County of Franklin approximately $6,000. The expense of the square to the Supreme Court alone aggregated $765.75

SCHOOL BOARD HOLDS MEETING

At a meeting of the School Board on Friday evening the action of Prof. Swope in taking the base ball team boys, who were on the much discussed base ball trip to Hanover, was upheld, was allowed to be final and the Board took no further action.

A number of applications were received from persons desiring positions on the teaching force of the local schools. These were held over to a called meeting to be held later than the election of teachers may take place in May this year instead of in June as heretofore. The same School Board is now in office in May as in June, whereas under the old system the Board used to organize in June and the new trustees had not elected before that time.

The matter of the tax rate came up for consideration and was left Friday evening's meeting. The rate will be held at a meeting on Tuesday evening, May 21.

The monthly bill was introduced by the Board in awarding a ball holiday on Ascension Day, May 10. There have been a number of requests for this concession and it was accordingly granted

At the junction of the two main avenues will be erected a circle center. The buildings in the architectural group will cost more than $20,000,000. The nucleus of the civic center will be a new city hall to take the place of the one destroyed in 1906. The exposition authorities have voted the sum of $1,000,000 for a great municipal auditorium to accommodate the conventions during the exposition. A great opera house will be erected on the private capital at the civic center, and the famous singers of the world will be heard in San Francisco in competition days. Great scenic effects in which the choral societies of foreign countries participate will be held upon the exposition grounds.

The Panama-Pacific International exposition will open with a pageant in San Francisco harbor of all the battleships of the navies of the world. The foreign vessels will be received at the Golden Gate heads, where, joined by ships of the American navy, the entire fleet will be escorted to the harbor of San Francisco, where it will participate in the most spectacular naval demonstration ever witnessed. San Francisco in 1915 will see the flags of more nations than have ever been brought together in one place at any one time. From unofficial consensus now received it is anticipated that 35 foreign battleships in addition to those of the United States navy will be gathered in San Francisco harbor.

The commemorative edifice, in purport like Bartholdi's statue of Liberty, will welcome vessels from afar. The structure to be known as the St. Francis memorial tower, will be 350 feet in height, with a base 220 feet square. The shaft will be eighty-two feet square, with corners rounded, and of steel construction and terra cotta veneering. The approximate cost of the tower will be $1,000,000. From the summit the sightseer will look almost straight down upon the waters of the Golden Gate, 1,200 feet below.

NICHESON MUST DIE IN CHAIR

Minister-Murderer's Last Hope Vanishes.

WILL GET NO CLEMENCY

Alienists Find Him Sane and Slayer of Avis Linnell Will Be Electrocuted.

Boston, May 17. — Clarence V. T. Nicheson must die. Governor Fuller after receiving the opinion of the alienists who examined the prisoner, read them carefully.

The governor caused the announcement to be made that executive clemency would not be extended. Nicheson will be executed some time early next week, that is, after midnight on Sunday.

The exact time when he will be put to death by electricity is a matter of discretion with General Hodges, warden of the state prison. He is allowed the entire week to follow the instructions of the court.

Governor Fuss issued a statement in regard to the case. It shows that the opinion of all the alienists, those employed by the state, by the prisoner personally and by the defense, all agree that Nicheson was not insane when he committed the crime and is not at the present time.

The doctors informed the governor that while the prisoner's antecedents were unsatisfactory and he was not the best and he showed had outlined abnormalities at times, it could not be said that he was irresponsible when he committed the crime, or that he is now legally insane.

The statement is as follows: "Executive clemency will not be extended in the case of Clarence V. T. Nicheson. The prisoner was sentenced on his own confession and without a trial for a crime which it appears impossible he that any normal man could commit.

"After his confession and sentence a plea of insanity was set up by his counsel and strongly supported by Attorneys Sullivan and Fish. The latter counsel for the defense left the case either counsel for the defense that he was actually insane then the case was certainly insane to the point of was actually insane then the case was certainly insane to the point of the present time.

"The evidence shows that Nicheson's family has been afflicted with insanity, that he himself is neurotic, a constitutional and a neurasthenic that he is subject to extreme emotional disturbances, marked loss of memory, which two alienists have diagnosed as hysterical insanity, and physician adding the alternative term of hysterical delirium and the majority opinion indicating that these attacks are hysterical attacks, marked by extreme emotional disturbances of brief duration, with loss of memory during the attack and for a varying period following it.

"The evidence, however, while clearly revealing these attacks, left no doubt that his crime was not committed by him during such an attack. Therefore, while there is some divergence of opinion among the alienists as to whether these attacks indicate actual insanity, there is sufficient ground for the conclusion that he is accountable for his crime, and that the exercise of executive clemency in this instance would be contrary to the public good."

TWO TITANIC WAIFS GREET GLAD MOTHER

New York, May 17.—The end of that chapter of the Titanic disaster that had to do with the rescue of two little boys and the mystery surrounding their identity, was furnished tonight by the arrival of the children's mother from abroad.

The three, mother and two little boys, were brought together. There was unmistakable and joyous recognition. Not in the sombre of the Child Memorial Home, there exist a record of so happy a reunion as occurred there when Mrs. Michel Navratil, of Nice, France, rushed to claim Lolo and Lump, the waifs of the Titanic disaster that has taken an ice bery and was saved.

From the time they were brought back to New York from the Carpathia several days ago, Lolo and Lump have been watching and waiting for the surrey on the fifth floor of the Children's Society building. One day they went to sleep with tearful clasp that they would not separate and that they would surely appear in the morning.

But it was not until the afternoon sun had set and he clapped his hands and cried "Mamma!" that Lump heard and felt more secure. He had made no mistake. Mamma was coming—and it was not "nervver." And so it was. The knob of the door turned and in she walked.

Lolo, releasing his hold on his little brother's hand, ran to the visitor and into his mother's arms. The boy buried his head in his mother's lap and cried. Lump stood quietly by for a moment, then he, too, threw his arms around his his mother suddenly cleared and the sad memory of her came to him. Lump crowded into her arms beside Lolo.

"My babies," said Mrs. Navratil, "my little boy Momond!" she kept on, turning to Miss Margaret Hays, of Philadelphia, and to Miss Jean Dean, of Philadelphia, and to Superintendent Walsh, of the Children's society, who had brought the boys to her.

Mrs. Navratil was separated from her husband and a son for whom she was pleading. It was arranged that the husband should see the children only once a month. On Easter Sunday, in charge of their custodians, the two boys were taken to call on Michel Navratil. That was the last the little lad remember saw of them until Thursday when the latter discovered his name in Hoffman and called on the Titanic.

On Easter Sunday, in charge of their custodians, the two boys were taken to call on Michel Navratil. That was the last the little lad remember saw of them until Thursday when the latter discovered his name in Hoffman and called on the Titanic.

In a fashionable fire raft which the Navratil children used and picking up on Monday last, were found three bodies—all of such a condition that they were committed to the sea as soon as the funeral service could be read over them.

The bodies were of men, and one of them, that of a fireman, was clutched in the hand by a lower line one of the boat, in their mouths were sea-weed. Among the effects of A. R. French, of the Oceanic staff, believes he was thus, clawed in their delirium to cut the rain of manner that he died.

News of the finding of these bodies of the victims was Thomas Beattie, a passenger.

SUBMARINE FAST ON JERSEY COAST

The C 2 Runs Aground Off Longport.

MAY PROVE A TOTAL LOSS

Fourteen Men Rescued, But Commander, Engineer Officer and Four Others Refuse to Leave.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 17. — The submarine C 2, a new vessel but not yet delivered to the United States government, ran aground three miles off Longport, the vessel is in a desperate condition and probably will be a total loss.

Fourteen members of the crew of the C 2 were rescued and brought ashore, while Captain N. Danenhower, an engineer of the ship, refused to leave, declaring that the vessel could be floated. They sent a message to a wrecking company to be summoned to the hope of saving the submarine.

The C 2 went aground when the Longport life saving crew and later the crew had returned in their station the submarine, whose official classification is "submersible," was seen to be aground some of Tunar, again signalled for help.

While the rain was falling and the sea was mountainous, two crews of government life savers, one from Ocean City, under Captain Joseph Blackmine, and another from the Great Egg Harbor station, launched their surf boats and brought fourteen men from the stranded submarine.

Captain S. Danenhower and the other four men refused to leave the vessel. Two of the men were engineers. Without aid the vessel will probably break James Meyers, and the other Parlon, a fireman.

"The fourteen men taken off arrived at the Great Egg Harbor life saving station and were given dry clothing, shelter and food.

The launch at sea was extremely hazardous and was accomplished by great skill even with the aid of the Ocean City crew. Afterward a second rescuer was made by the Great Egg Harbor gasoline power lifeboat, which proved to be in the greatest danger, for the breakers were dashing mountains high in the heavy wind.

Captain Danenhower remained on the wreck when the life savers took him the boat, with the exception of quicksand shoal, was in imminent danger of being overturned and that it filled all the tanks on the submarine, by which the boat is submerged, and it was his idea that this weight of water in the tanks would help to counterbalance the submarine to rest solidly in the sand.

She was rolling, however, when the Ocean City crew left her, and with the fourteen men rescued. Further the captain declared that there was sufficient assistance onto when he found that he was going down to leave the ship. He thought one of the propellers was crippled and that this had disarranged the propelling machinery.

Immediately after launching a powerful wheze signals could be seen through the rain, Captain Danenhower and the other crew, sent for a rescuer cutter to aid. This vessel responded to the call on the way, but if the conditions should become worse, the boat, lying in the trough, would be a total, and death might be the fate of the five men aboard.

The submarine had gone out from Bridgeport, Conn., on her trial trip service at sea being required for the government before it is taken over. She launched was consequently not in charge of naval men, but of a civilian crew, but of employes of the Lake Torpedo Boat company.

NO TAFT WITHDRAWAL

Even Loss of Ohio Would Not Cause President to Quit Race.

Cleveland, May 17.—Frederick Taft does not intend to withdraw from the presidential race even should he lose Ohio.

"Such a hypothetic," declared Dr. Harper, Taft's publicity agent and spokesman, commenting on Taft's statement, "is far from likely. Moreover, that the president contemplates quitting if he is defeated in Ohio. This picturesque language was taken to mean that the story was a pipe dream."

Colonel Roosevelt's claim that he had 501 delegates and would be nominated on the first ballot was labelled "absurd" by members of the Taft party. Senator Sutherland declared the situation that he will carry Ohio rolled.

Now Industry for Italy.

In Italy it seems has been discovered to turn to account the hitherto worthless pips of the grapes used in wine-making. Oil is now extracted from them on a commercial scale by a process of direct heating with tetrachloride of carbon. The latter is obtained in abundance in Italy in the preparation of wood-style soda.

Stopped Waste of Water.

Watertown detective has been made a science by the present city engineer of London. By his application he has reduced the daily consumption ten gallons per head of population. This saving is simply enormous. In that London wastes it is enough water to meet the needs of a city of 400,000 inhabitants.
